SENSIBLE TEMPERANCE REFORM.

The progress of temperance work in the south presents some interesting features, and what is refreshing and sensible about the methods of work down there is that there is no tendency to carry the subject into politics in the direction of a third party. In Alabama, for example, a local option law is in force. Under it the question of license or no license is settled by each voting precinct for itself. No man can open a saloon without first filing in the probate court a petition to be signed by a majority of the citizens of the precinct who voted at the next preceding election, and paying a license fee of $225. It therefore rests with a majority of the voters to determine whether or not liquor shall be sold. The result is that practical prohibition prevails throughout a considerable portion of the state, and that portion is being increased year by year. Violations of the law are few indeed, not many men having the hardihood to defy the openly expressed will of the majority of the people. The law is probably as effective a prohibition statute as could be framed, for it gives absolute prohibition wherever that is demanded and sustained by popular sentiment, and does not impose upon other places a measure which the public does not demand and will not sustain.

When the temperance people of the north shall follow the example of the wise temperance people of the south, they will begin in the most effective way, to strike a deadly blow at intemperance. It can not be done otherwise. A third party movement means nothing less than defeat of temperance reform. It is a struggle against hope, a contest against an impossibility—a movement without strong public sentiment to support it.

MAKE LOGAN PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE.

The senate of the United States should not hesitate a moment to choose John A. Logan its presiding officer. If it shall do this, he will then virtually hold the office for which he was nominated in 1881. This much can be said in favor of this proposition: Owing to the peculiar deadlock in the Illinois legislature Mr. Logan was absent from the senate when two new committees were made up, and he has not been assigned to a place on any of them; and, as he was regularly nominated by the republican party for the vice-presidency, there would be peculiar fitness in putting him in the chair so unexpectedly made vacant by Mr. Hendricks' death.

But this is not all. Senator Logan is one of the most conspicuous men in this country. He has been a senator for many years. During his term as senator and also as member of the house, his voice has been on the right side of all great questions of public concern; and never has his hands been engaged in speculations or in plundering. He is one of the purest men in our politics, and has the high esteem and the abiding confidence of his brother senators of both parties. The work he has done for his country when his country stood in dire need of his courage and ability and a leader of men in battle, entitles him to the gratitude of the United States senate, and to choose him president of that body would be a fitting acknowledgment of his worth as a man and his ability as a senator. Senator Logan would dignify the office. The senate would honor itself by giving him the place, and the country would applaud the Senate for so wise an action.

A VERY IMPORTANT MATTER.

Section I of Article II of the constitution of the United States says that "In case of the removal of the president from office, or his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the vice-president, and the congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation or inability of both the president and vice-president, declaring what officer shall then act as president, and such officer shall act accordingly, until the disability be removed, and a president shall be elected."

Congress has never enacted such a law. Several attempts have been made to pass a bill through congress which would relieve the country from embarrassment in case of the death of the president and vice-president. Last spring, while the senate was in session to confirm appointments under the new administration, Mr. Hendricks somewhat interfered with the selection of a president pro tempore of the senate, so that at this time neither house has a presiding officer, and should anything happen to the president there would be no one who could become his unquestioned successor. The experience of 1881, and the sudden and unexpected death of Vice-President Hendricks should warn us that it is dangerous to tittle with a great question.

During the last session a bill was framed on this subject and which would meet the case in any emergency, and it passed the senate, but the democratic house of representatives did not act upon the bill and therefore it fell to the ground. It is hoped for the good of the country that something will be done during the coming session to bridge the present uncertainty as to who shall act as president in case of the removal of the president and vice-president. It is a question that congress can not afford to put off any longer.

The other day the Cleveland Plain Dealer, a paper that defends the election frauds in Cincinnati, made use of the following language when the election contest was taken into the courts: "They have come to understand that the democrats of the state intend to be jugged out of their majority in the senate by any means in the courts. The impression begins to dawn upon them that this is a game where the republicans can't make up a better one out of their "cold deck," so to speak."

The democratic position is simply thus, and it is unassassable:

"There are four [boorish] democratic senators elected in Hamilton county. They will get their certificates. They will keep their seats. The state senate will be democratic. There is not much to be said about this. It is so because it is so."

As one very pointedly said a long time ago, the best laid plans of mice and men oft go astray, so in this case, the plans of the Cleveland Plain Dealer will not be carried out according to its promise and boast. The circuit court of Cincinnati has directed its clerk to issue certificates of election to the four republican candidates for senator. Now let us see what the Plain Dealer will do about it.

The unfortunate self-destruction of County Judge Sunborn, of Dane county, has caused a lively raid on Governor Rusch by those who are candidates for the vacant office. Each candidate is backed by numerous supporters, but who will be the chosen one can not be told. The governor proposed to take his time in considering the matter, and in making the appointment will select a man who will honor the position. The office pays $2,000 a year and the appointment will run four years from the first of next January. The scramble at Madison for the county judgeship shows the general condition of the public mind on the question of office. Other begging is becoming chronic in this country, and growing worse. It is said on reasonably good authority that during the past season not less than 14,000 persons have visited Washington for the purpose of begging for places under the government, and that for the 16,000 appointments made, including four-class postmasters, there were not less than 80,000 applicants.

Messrs. Edgerton and Trenholm, the new civil service commissioners, are reversing the rules of that body with true democratic spirit. Naturally, the first thing they propose to do is to strike out the ineligibility clause, which bars out those who served in the confederate army. Confederate veterans will then probably be given equal preference with the union veterans. Practically that would mean a preference to the exclusion of Union men. At least, that seems to harmonize best with democratic ideas now.

A stray item from an eastern exchange. George Meach, a Wisconsin farmer, was considerably exercised last week by the strange actions of a partridge, which alighted on his head for three consecutive times while he was at work in the field. Being superstitious, he was filled with forebodings, which were strengthened by the comments of his neighbors. Instead of dying or meeting with some dreadful accident, as he fully expected, he received word that an uncle had died and left him a large estate.

William R. King, elected on the ticket with James Buchanan in 1856 and the last democratic predecessor of Vice President Hendricks, died in Havana, where he went for health after election, and soon after taking the oath of office as vice president before the United States consul at that place.—Chicago Journal.

The "Old Reliable" is somewhat off in the foregoing statement. John C. Breckinridge was elected on the ticket with James Buchanan, and William R. King, on the ticket with Franklin Pierce.

It has often been said that a man is no sooner buried than he is forgotten. This is pretty well illustrated by the action of the New York people in regard to subscribing for the Grant monument. The fund grows exceedingly slow, and at the present rate of progress it will never reach the dignity of a monument fund. Thus, the people whose power and glory General Grant exemplified and made famous, are slow to perpetuate his memory in marble and bronze.

The report is current that Mr. Nels W. Wheeler, of Baraboo, is in a critical condition, having had a stroke of paralysis.

Mr. Wheeler is one of the best known lawyers in Wisconsin, and as a humorous speaker is one of the very best in the state. He is in the prime of life and his critical condition will be deeply regretted by all classes of citizens.

The free traders have made a good deal of fuss because, as they alleged, the protectionists used money to secure certain legislation. But now the free traders want to raise $20,000 to secure legislation that suits them. This illustrates what the late Bishop Ames once said—Orthodoxy is my doxy, and heterodoxy is your doxy."

Senator Edmunds is very disarctis the use of language. He remarked the other day that the senate would not confirm fulfil appointments the president had made; and that the president was doing "fairly well—for a democrat."

The criticism by one democrat of other democrats, from the Albany Argus: "The most inexcusable attacks upon the president are those made by certain democratic journals on the subject of appointments."

The stone which the builders of the national administration rejected seems to have become the chief stone of the corner under the state administration of Governor Hill.

While the administration is fooling about civil service reform, Sterling steps in and gets the plunder. He is a Sterling "boss" and a Sterling democrat.

MIDLOTHIAN'S HEART

GOES OUT BY A LARGE MAJORITY TO GLADSTONE.

The "Grand Old Man" Gets About All the Votes—Intense Interest in the Contest—Turbulence in Ireland—Exit Theobald—Foreign Notes.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Mr. Gladstone is re-elected for Midlothian, as was expected, and his majority is unexpected large. At the last election he had a majority over the other candidates of 1,100, but in a total vote of 1,400, Friday, he received 7,870 votes to 3,245 for Mr. Charles Dilworth, his Tory opponent. This gives him a majority of 4,634 in a total vote of 11,124.

The whole country awaited the news from Midlothian with eager interest. Crowds assembled in all the chief towns, and in London thousands of people blocked the streets in front of all the principal offices. The news of Mr. Gladstone's victory was received, and the crowd displayed the widest enthusiasm. Chants were given for the "Grand Old Man," and the crowds began singing, "For he's a jolly good fellow, which nobody can deny."

In the east division of County Mayo, John Dillon, Nationalist, was elected with out opposition. In the St. Rollox division of Glasgow, Mr. McCulloch defeated Mr. Gladstone.

W. Woodrich Edwin Hughes, Tory, the most artful election agent in the kingdom, who only escaped imprisonment for bribery at Sandwich in 1850, by turning queen's evidence, defeated Capt. H. M. Heriot, Liberal, a famous military writer, and formerly war correspondent of The Times by 730 to S. 400.

The latest returns show the election of 13 Liberals, 10 Tories, and 18 Peasantries. Total number of voters 29,920.

The polling in the Scotch burghs shows an undiminished number of Liberal votes throughout Scotland. There are no symptoms of a Conservative reaction in that quarter. The prospects now are against a strong Conservative majority in parliament. The predictions of the Carlton club members, based upon reports of agents, show that they will carry 200 seats, and 230 for the Conservatives, who out of sixty divisions expect to carry fifty-seven. They already hold thirty-two divisions, while the Liberals have twenty. The Church Record, analyzing the result of the elections, speaks of the "victories" of the Gladstonians, who favored Disestablishment; were defeated and only twenty-eight were returned. The Record infers that the church question was the leading cause of the Conservative successes.

Alfonso's Removals in Madrid.

MADRID, Nov. 28.—The remains of King Alfonso were removed from El Escorial to Madrid in great pomp. Queen Christina and two little daughters occupied a carriage immediately behind the funeral-car and were heavily veiled to conceal their emotions. Behind the royal carriage was an imposing cortege comprising 2,000 private carriages of the nobility and gentry of Spain. The streets were lined with thousands of spectators, who, though the procession was not needed except to add to the impressiveness of the pageant. The populace appeared stricken with grief and full of sympathy for the widow and orphans. Many of the women wept and the men occasionally cheered as the equipage of some famous or popular nobleman came into sight.

On arriving at the Escorial palace, the main entrance, reserved for the king of Spain, was thrown open, and the body was carried from the car to the Hall of Columns, attended by the queen and all the assembled grandees. The body will lie in state for three days.

Bulgarian Victories.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Prince Alexander continues his forward march, and the Servian line of advance is still slow, back-breaking, and laborious. The Bulgarians attack. Here, the former Servian headquarters, and after two desperate assaults captured the city. Prince Alexander has fixed his camp at Pirot, as his headquarters—and will direct further movements into Servia. He is said to have dispatched a body of troops toward Nissa. King Milan is making every effort to check the Bulgarian invasions of the reserves, and is moving the bulk of the reserves forward to the front. He has joined the army near Pirot and will take command of a force of 80,000. The Servian government has called upon every man in Nissa, under pain of being shot, to provide himself with three days' rations and prepare to defend Pirot and Nissa. Fifteen thousand Servian troops are assembled.

A Rebellion in India.

CALCUTTA, Nov. 28.—A serious rebellion has broken out in the kingdom of Nepal. A large force of native insurgents attacked the royal palace at Kathmandu and obtained possession of the citadel. Prince Minister Jung Bahadur, the real ruler of the kingdom, was captured and put to death. The minister, Dhon Shandar Bahadur, is a minor, and a prisoner in the hands of the rebels. The British minister, C. E. R. Girdestone, was absent from Kathmandu on a tour of inspection.

The Kingdom of Nepal lies between British India on the south and Tibet on the north, and occupies the southern portion of the plateau of Central Asia. It has an area of 24,000 square miles, a population of over 2,000,000, and for administrative purposes is divided into nine districts. The value of its trade with India is about $1,000,000 per annum, and its revenue over 1,000,000 pounds sterling. The aborigines are of the Mongolian type, but are intermingled with Hindus and Gurkhas.

Theeaw Desert His Kingdom.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—It is reported in Bengal that the Theeaw has finally abandoned the capital—Mandalay—and sought refuge on Chinese soil, rather than await the arrival of the victorious British and Indian army of invasion.

The Chinese government recently informed Great Britain that it would in every way oppose the British operations in Burma, even if they resulted in annexation of the country to India. It is not yet known, therefore, that Theeaw will be allowed to escape to China.

The British troops are now before Mandalay. As the guns on the steamers are hardly powerful enough to bombard the city from the river, three miles distant, the troops will probably be landed for the final attack upon the city.

Outbreak Between Roman Catholics and Catholiques.

LONDONDERRY, Nov. 28.—The elections in this city Friday were attended with serious fighting between Roman Catholics and Catholiques. The former were the aggressors. They marched through the streets in large bands shouting and smashing the windows of shops and the residences occupied by Catholiques. Some of the Protestant churches were attacked and the Salvatorian barracks were wrecked. About twenty Loyolites were more or less seriously wounded. A stipendiary magistrate was present and said many injured. Many arrests were made.
